Dear Pete:

Please accept this letter of recommendation pertinent to the construction of the Rosemary Garfoot Public Library in Cross Plains, Wisconsin.

Almost three years have passed since the community of Cross Plains opened the doors to the first LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) certified public library in the state of Wisconsin. Even though the facility is no longer brand new, visitors from around the state and nation continue to tour the building and remark about the beautiful structure, the aesthetically pleasing interior and uplifting ambience. I believe these testimonials speak to the quality of this facility constructed by K.F. Sullivan.

Throughout the construction process, I, as library director, was engaged with the construction team on a regular basis - most directly with Ron, the construction superintendent. Though initially overwhelmed by the magnitude of building the first LEED public library in the state, I was immediately put at ease by Ron and the crew who welcomed my frequent visits and questions. Careful attention was paid to ensuring my understanding of myriad details from installation of trusses to pouring concrete over radiant floor heat tubing.

Working with K.F. Sullivan was a positive and rewarding experience. This is a company that is committed to quality construction, embraces ingenuity and understands the importance of first-rate customer service. There is something to be said about the peace-of-mind that accompanies erection of a facility by a firm with over seventy years in the construction business.

The community of Cross Plains is proud of their progressive library and the legacy that has been built as an icon of good environmental stewardship. This beautiful facility has become a landmark that will benefit many generations of deserving citizens.

Sincerely,

Pamela Bosben
Library Director
